- 5. From the worker's gross salary there were such deductions as:
 installment for subscription to the "Peace Loan", rent, fuel, and old age pension payment. Further, payment was deducted in advance for lunches at his place of work. If the worker had small children, payment for their care in the nursery was also deducted in advance.

6. Rents were high in Hungary A worker usually lived in an apartment consisting of one room and kitchen. His rent for such an apartment was 80 to 100 forints per month. A two room apartment with kitchen, bath room and closets cost about 200 forints per month. The government planned to raise rents by 20-75% beginning 1 May 1952.
